The refugees, all from Germany, had hardly set foot on land when one couple—Heinrich Hurwicz and Rosa Tipper—were married. Six more couples were married the next day. All the romances save one began on shipboard.

Captain Nels Helgesen of the Coamo, which carried the refugees from New York on the last stage of the journey, had declined to perform the nuptials aboard ship.

BOOKS

"Toward a Solution," by Israel Goldstein, Rabbi of Congregation B'nai Eshurun, Putnam's, New York.

RABBI MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Dr. Goldstein, the very busy rabbi and national head of the Jewish National Fund, offers to the reader a number of suggestions toward the solution of many of the ills that beset our times. One may read herein of the price of peace and freedom, of the meaning of democracy, of the moral strength of men in an immoral age, and of the issues involved in inter-faith relationships. He asks and answers a number of questions about Jews: Why are we Jews, what is happening to our Jewish youth, and what are the essential problems of our times? He is frankly critical of the rabbinate and of his colleagues. He is keenly aware of the strength of Zionism and of its importance for Jewish happiness and Jewish survival. There are other studies of varied interests and a series of memorial addresses.

The volume has much useful information. While it does not engage in controversy, frequently it touches on the controversial and will provide the grounds for many discussions. Thus, in the old, old question of what makes Jews Jews, Dr. Goldstein summarizes the matter by saying: "Is the term 'Jew' a racial designation, a religious label, or a national epithet? It is none of these alone. Being a Jew in the broadest definition means, first, the accident of birth; secondly, the act of choice, choosing to remain Jews despite the difficulties; thirdly, the act of cognition, learning to know the history and literature of his people so as to understand its soul and appreciate its place in the world; and, finally, the act of transmission, transmitting to the next generation his heritage and the will to carry it on so that the Jewish people may not perish from the earth."

Unfortunately, as Dr. Goldstein remarks in the introduction, it has been necessary to reduce the amount of detail with which the author first approached these subjects through his addresses and sermons. The essays do lack the fire and enthusiasm of the spoken word. The volume is, however, a good reflection of the thought and scholarship of the American rabbi and is a worthy contribution to current Jewish writing. All may read it with profit.

On Feb. 3 there will be a dinner at the Claypool Hotel in connection with the regional conference of the Woman's Field Army of the American Society for Control of Cancer. On the executive committee of the Indiana division is Dr. J. K. Berman. Mrs. Isaac Born has done an exceptionally fine piece of organization work as chairman for Indiana. Mrs. Ernest Fisher and Mrs. Ferdinand Born are in charge of the motor corps for the conference.

CAN YOU USE MORE MONEY?

People who made New Year's resolutions to save more money in 1941 recognize that one of the best ways to do so is to stop using their autos for trips downtown each day and to ride the convenient and economical trolley service in Indianapolis.

It has been estimated that it costs about 50 cents a day to drive your car to business. This amount includes parking, gasoline, oil, tires, a wash job about once a week, and some maintenance work now and then. It does not include items like depreciation, insurance, license fees, taxes and such other fixed expenses which go right along whether you drive your car or not.

If the direct cost of driving your car to work, expense which you would not have to endure if you left it at home, is 50 cents per day and you go to work 300 days a year, that makes your transportation outlay $150 per annum. The exact amount, of course, varies with the distance of your home from your place of work.

Nevertheless, if we take the figure of $150 as an average, it becomes apparent that the trolley rider has a big advantage in the matter of savings. His daily round trip fare on a street car or trackless trolley by using 6 1/4-cent tokens is only 12 1/2 cents. So we see the transportation cost for the trolley rider averages approximately $37.50 for an entire year.

The difference between $150 and the much smaller trolley transportation cost leaves a sizeable sum which you will have saved during 1941 if you start riding transit vehicles today and leave your auto at home.

DOES FORD PAY GOOD WAGES?

HERE ARE SOME FACTS about Ford Labor.

During the year ended November 30th, 1940, the Ford Payroll throughout the United States averaged 113,628 hourly wage earners, not including office employees, students, or executives. They were paid $185,105,639.12. On this basis, the average annual wage was $1,629.05.

According to the latest available government figures, the annual average wage of all workers in employment covered by old age insurance law was $841.00.

If the 45,000,000 workers of this country received the same average wage as Ford employees, they would have had additional wages of more than $35,000,000,000, thus increasing the national income about 50%. Think what such an increase would mean to the workers of this country and to the American farmer, whose prices are based on the national income.

Wage scales in the Ford Rouge plants are divided into three classifications:

Unskilled . . .
Minimum hiring wage . 75¢ per hour
Semi-skilled . . .
Minimum hiring wage . 80¢ per hour
Skilled . . .
Minimum hiring wage . 90¢ per hour. Higher wages are in consideration of ability and years of service.

Minimum wage scales for unskilled labor at the Rouge plant are the highest in the industry. Top wages for skilled labor compare favorably with, or are higher than, wages in other automobile plants.

Now some facts on Ford labor conditions:

Not only are sanitation and other health conditions the best in the industry, but Ford also leads in safety devices for the protection of employees.

Proof of this is found in the following comparison of compensation insurance costs:

The national average rate in automotive manufacturing plants as computed by the National Association of Underwriters is in excess of $1.50 premium on each $100 payroll. The Ford cost of workmen's compensation is less than 50¢.

This indicates that the chance of injury in a Ford plant is much less than in the average automobile plant.

The Ford Motor Company has no age limit for labor, and in fact deliberately attempts to keep older workers working. The average age of Ford workers at the Rouge and nearby plants is 38.7.

A recent check-up shows that nearly one-half the workers at these Ford plants were 40 or over, falling into these age groups:

25,819 between 40 and 50
14,731 between 50 and 60
3,377 between 60 and 70
417 between 70 and 80
12 between 80 and 90

In addition to the so-called regular employees, the Ford Motor Company has hired, and now has on the payroll, at the same regular hourly wage, thousands of workers who are blind, crippled or otherwise incapacitated for normal productive work. They are not selected for their ability to build cars or to maintain the plant. They are on the payroll because of Henry Ford's belief that the responsibility of a large company to labor goes beyond the point at which the unfortunate worker can no longer produce profitably.

The above are facts. They are open to anyone who really wants to deal in facts. Anyone who wants to get a job . . . buy a car . . . or place a national defense contract on the basis of fair labor treatment must place Ford at the top of his eligible list.

AL SEGAL Speaks on Loving Hitler

MY FRIEND, Robert M. Jones, pastor of the Quaker Church, writes to inform me that the Quakers haven't had any trouble with Hitler. They have been sending food over for Jews and Poles in occupied regions and, according to the information that Mr. Jones sends, the Nazis have kept their promise: They have seen to it that the food is distributed to those for whom it was intended.

This work has been done under the direction of Clarence Pickett, secretary of the American Friends (Quakers) Service Committee.

"Clarence Pickett is no friend of Nazism and no one knows this better than Adolf Hitler," says an article from a Methodist paper which accompanies Mr. Jones' letter. "But Clarence Pickett bears simple testimony to a fact of his experience. Stated simply that truth is: Hitler can be compelled to keep a promise, but only love and truth and kindness can so compel him."

I should like to believe this, for I am one of those who have suffered horribly from disillusion. I used to say that love and truth and kindness were authorities more potent than guns, tanks and flying fortresses. I said that nations, like men, receive kindness in return even as they give it out of their decent hearts. There was no need for guns. I was a pacifist.

I know a lot of people who have suffered in the same way. They had been taught from their childhood that love and truth and kindness were as almighty as God himself; love and truth and kindness were God. By this they had lived and hoped in all their days and had come to middle age believing it even the more. It seemed to be proved by all their experience.

(It is most tragic to come to disillusion in middle age. Disillusion is less painful to youth; youth has time to get over it.)

It seems to me that the rape of nations is not the most flagrant of the Hitler crimes. Worse is that he has plundered the heart of man and left it empty; he has robbed him of the old faith in the conquering power of love and truth and kindness. I am glad to find a few people, like the Quakers, left to believe that love, truth and kindness can conquer even Hitler.

I remember one evening in early spring last year. Enough had occurred before then to challenge a man's faith—Austria, Munich, Czechoslovakia, Poland, the great pogroms. But one could say, Well, maybe he'll stop after Munich, maybe he'll stop after Czechoslovakia, or after Poland.

I was at my radio set about 11 o'clock that evening when an excited voice burst into my living room: "Norway has been invaded! Denmark has been taken over by the Nazis."

This was unimaginable to my faith. Denmark had been kind to Hitler. Denmark had wanted only peace with him. Denmark asked only to be allowed to live. It had lived so spaciously within its narrow borders.

Norway had been kind to Hitler. Norway had spoken softly to Hitler. Norway wanted only peace that it might continue the good way of life it had set for itself. One used to read about social enlightenment in Norway. It was a bright exemplar of effective democracy. It had few guns; it spent its substance rather for the enlargement of life.

Hitler had made promises. He had a non-aggression treaty with Norway, as one remembered. Yes, he had distinctly promised in writing.

These events weren't at all in accordance with what a man had learned in his youth and believed in all his life. He had learned that gentle, decent people who did right need fear no man. But decent people who loved justice and liberty and peace and kindness were being overrun by mechanized arrogance and cruelty coming on iron hoofs.

Even in that hour one's faith tried to be brave. It said that things like these couldn't go on in a moral order. This was like such an unimaginable thing as the law of gravity being reversed, like summer coming out of turn contrary to natural law.

There was another evening—May 10. I was again at my radio set when doom-croaking voices came flying, like sad, black ravens, into my living room. . . . "Hitler over Holland!" . . . Hitler over Belgium!" . . . "Hitler leaping out of the skies in parachutes!"

Holland and Belgium had been kind to Hitler. They had done everything to please him. They had spoken ever so softly. They had tip-toed in his presence. Holland had wanted nothing from Hitler. It had been content to be allowed to keep on growing lovely tulips. Belgium had wanted nothing from Hitler. It was happy enough in the thrift of its peasants, in the gaiety of Brussels. It had a written promise from Hitler.

In this hour, like many another, I ceased altogether to be a pacifist, at least for the duration of the time when ravenous wolves were prowling the world. Not that I was without love and kindness. I could still love and be kind, but my love and kindness must be for the innocent victims of the wolves. The wolves must be destroyed for the sake of love and kindness.

Yes, it is painful to lose an old faith in a time of life when you have just found the first gray hair in your head. In an old heart an old faith should stand planted firmly like an old oak. The old heart suffers when the old faith is uprooted from its depths by a Hitler.

I cannot go along with Mr. Jones and the Quakers in loving Hitler in order to conquer him. But I envy their faith and thank them for importing their own truth, love and kindness to the occupied region where falsehood, hate and cruelty abide in an immense darkness.

Yet Hitler has not robbed my heart of everything. It has great memories. It knows love, truth and kindness as the sum of the Jewish teaching—the law and the prophets. It remembers the might of my former oppressors which lies in the dust of ages; their chariots and their swords are rust, their cruelty only a page of history. But the Jews who had only their Torah and their prophets by which to be strong have survived—even to live through other persecutions.

By this experience I am assured that everything is going to be all right in the fullness of time, that truth, love and kindness will come to rule the earth, that the power of the transgressor will lie dead among his rusted tanks and broken stukas.

Yes, love, truth and kindness will conquer him—but with the sword by which he himself has chosen to perish.

PAGLIACCI LAUGHS—Lisbon jokesters are getting orders from Berlin to go slow on the anti-Axis gags, we hear. . . . Among the stories banned is that of the automobile racer who, after coping all the prizes, explained his success by saying: "It's my tires that do the trick. . . . I make it a point to have Italian tires on the front wheels and Greek tires in the rear." . . . It's a good thing there's an Atlantic Ocean between Berlin and the Manhattanite who recently was heard to refer to Il Duce as Has-Benito. . . . Badolf's own nephew, William Patrick Hitler, is credited with the story of the camera man who was given the assignment to shoot (photographically speaking) Hitler and Mussolini together. . . . The photog seated the two dictators in the proper position, and then instructed: "Now scowl, please." . . .

Which reminds us of the report that on 49th street there's a barber shop in which the razor strop is adorned with Hitler's picture. . . . Seriously speaking, however, we want to tell you to watch the New York Herald-Tribune for an expose on local bigwigs with Nazi leanings.

She gave us the Balfour Declaration, and since then has done her level best, against bitter Arab opposition, to facilitate the establishment of the Jewish Homeland." (Continued on Page 5)

The Editor's Chair:

The task of William I. Boxerman, the new A. D. L. director for Florida, has been made some easier since the past week. Instead of worrying about the antics of the Jewish vacationers who insult so-called good taste from all over, now he can eliminate those from Chicago's 300,000 Jews.

This limiting of territory to be covered becomes possible because of items appearing in the Chicago Jewish Chronicle which indicate that no Chicagoans are among the offenders. New York, Mr. Boxerman should take note, is where these atrocious people come from, and he now knows that "certain parts of New York produce types that should stay at home. New York may be used to them, but Miami Beach can well get along without them."

I hope H. L. Meites, editor of the Chicago Jewish Chronicle, will forgive me, but this matter of South Haven and Miami Beach is a fighting subject with me.

The paper says further:

The least desirable elements of Benton Harbor, St. Joe and South Haven have moved to Miami Beach, including the noisy and misbehaved children.

In one hotel lobby we counted a poker game, eleven pinochle and seventeen Mah Jong games going full blast.

Signs and posters at the beaches and at public places read: "Ordinance No. 566 requires bathers to have covering from shoulder to knees for street attire in the city of Miami Beach." But many New Yorkers care little for ordinances. The fatter the woman the more anxious she is to show off, and this is also true of some men. The more bear-like they look, the more anxious they are to appear exposed.

The fat mamas clad in hideous ill-fitting shorts clutter the sidewalks showing off their avoirdupois to great disadvantage. It is made up for, however, by stylish, attractive, young matrons who not only understand proper dress, but have poise and aristocratic bearing which are admirable, indeed.

The "allrightniks" and the "newly-rich" can easily be recognized. Their "I-can-afford-it" arrogance is so apparent that they give themselves away.

First Rabbinical Body In Indiana

FORMATION OF a Lake County Rabbinical Association, consisting of Rabbi Julius Siegel and Rabbi Garry August, of Gary, Rabbi A. Feinberg and Rabbi Sidney Mossman of Hammond and Rabbi Louis Sacks of Indiana Harbor, certainly deserves commendation. To this paper's knowledge, the new group is the first Rabbinical Association ever formed in Indiana. Also it is not difficult to prophesy that the Lake County Rabbinical Association will, in time, be enlarged into an association of all State rabbis, which will be able to effect for all the Indiana Jewish communities exactly the same ends that the Lake County Group will try to achieve for its own locality.

Second Battle of Atlanta

THE BATTLE of Atlanta which "Gone With The Wind" made famous will be as an engagement between two gangs of neighborhood children when compared with the coming clash at the annual convention of the National Council of Jewish Welfare Funds and Federations.

This second "Battle of Atlanta" will not center around the complaint of the United Palestine Appeal over Sidney Hollander's suggestion of some sort of joint budgeting body; nor will it center around an attempt to re-assemble the "humpty-dump" United Jewish Appeal. Rather, it will be a determined demand on the part of the more far-seeing delegates for the assumption by the Council of the real unified direction of United States Jewry.

The battle lines have been drawn these last few years, and were only demobilized for a short time while the General Jewish Council was given its "day in court." So that what with the complete disappearance of the General Jewish Council from the scene as an important body, those who for several years now have demanded that the Council assume the position its make-up as representative of Jews in over two hundred cities gives it, will be in the finest psychological position to make their demands successfully.

The Community Assumes A Responsibility

THE PRESIDENT'S Birthday Ball Thursday at the Claypool Hotel, this paper believes, will be one of the most successful affairs in the history of the local Jewish community. On only very few other occasions has either the same support been enlisted from the entire Jewish community, or the same beneficent purpose motivated the buying of tickets for any entertainment.

Although the idea was born in the B'nai B'rith, the sponsorship of the affair today is the entire Jewish Community. Tickets are $1.00. Gold tickets, designating purchasers as sponsors, are $5.00. Any reader of The Jewish Post residing outside of Indianapolis who may wish to contribute to this worthy cause, may send his money direct to this paper.

Don't forget the date—Thursday night. This is an opportunity to show concretely how much a part of civic life, burdens and responsibilities is shared by the Jewish community.

Current Comment

Sholomo Katz in The B'nai B'rith Messenger of Los Angeles, Deplores Injection of Jewish Angle Into New Field—That the Jewish Question is injected into all sorts of issues where it does not belong is an old story. Sensitive souls raise a disapproving eyebrow and openly show their annoyance when it is dragged into such topics as the reclamation of the Brazilian jungle or the colonization of the North Pole.

But until yesterday, there was at least one sphere of enterprise that remained free of its haunting complexities. That was the venerable "hold up" profession. Until yesterday, if a man pulled his hat over his eyes, stuck a gun into his hip pocket and went about his business of taxing those who had a few dollars in their jeans, he could forget that Jews existed in the world—that is, if he ever had been aware of it. In the realm of cops and robbers there were no Jews nor Jewish Questions.

But yesterday even this last retreat was invaded by the above mentioned Question with a capital Q. And the Jewish hero of the story acquitted himself nobly and manifested a keen understanding of the Question that would do credit to a leader of the Anti-Defamation League.

The story, in brief, is as follows. Druggist Joseph Smith was alone in his pharmacy in the evening when, lo, the door opened and the Jewish gazlen entered. The gazlen—robber to you—did everything a law abiding, dues paying member of the "hold up association" must do. First of all, he was properly dressed. He wore an old suit, had no collar or tie and furthermore, he looked starved. He also went through the necessary motions with creditable efficiency. He raised his gun and asked for money.

But druggist Smith was not the scary kind and in addition to knowing his aspirins he apparently had also read a couple of chapters on the psychology of oppressed minorities. "You Jewish?" he asked. The gazlen assented. With this bond of fellowship established, the druggist applied his psychology. He said, "With all the trouble Jews are up against in this world, you're only making things worse." The gazlen was touched and began to blubber. He gave the druggist his name and address. (He had forgotten about the money, his original mission.) Next day he turned himself in to the police.

Since the druggist involved is also a Jew, this episode is in a sense a little family affair. And I think the druggist deserves something in the nature of a reprimand. We know how oppressively the Question hangs over us these days. Can't a young man who is moved to commit a hold up be allowed to do so without being scared with a reminder of Coughlin, Hitler and other assorted bogeymen?

We need not, at this moment, go into the question of Jewish criminality. This young man, it appears from later more detailed reports, was merely down on his luck and not a criminal at all. But even if he had been one, there's a school of thought which declares that Jews are entitled to their share of criminals. In other words, equality in the underworld as well as under the sun. If and when "underworlds" are done away with through the social revolution or the advent of the Messiah, Jewish members of that fraternity of dark alleys will also be withdrawn from circulation. In the meantime, let's do what we can without getting frantic if we hear of a gangster named Goldberg.

But in the process of educating criminal elements back into "normal" society, it is necessary to practice great caution. Otherwise more damage than good may be done. And the technique of the aforementioned druggist is open to question. By forcefully brandishing the Jewish Question over the head of the victim at such a delicate moment, the druggist could easily have upset the mental balance of his client and inspired him with neuroses, complexes and anxieties whose ultimate harm would far outweigh his temporary lapse from respect for private property.

Starts Early in Action
For Passover Meals

To the Editor:

Time flies too quickly, and before we can realize, you and I will again meet on Washington street and discuss the problem of Passover as we did last year without being able to accomplish anything in answer to the question.

It occurs to me that there are a great many people in our community who want to observe this holiday traditionally and that they are deprived of an opportunity to do so by the lack of interest on the part of the people who are in a position to, and should, help them.

I am inclined to feel that if the rabbis who preach observance of this holiday are sincere in their preachings, they should do something to make it possible for people to conform. If they honestly believe that dietary laws should be observed, they can arrange for someone to serve Passover meals downtown during these holidays.

I realize that this would be but a seasonal undertaking and would not net great profits, if any at all, to a private individual who would undertake this, but I repeat if it is as important as these rabbis would have us believe, then I am sure that their congregations would underwrite the expense of such an undertaking.

My experience has been that the people who want to conform do not hesitate to pay their share, and if our rabbis will realize that they will gain greater popularity by devoting their time to impressing their congregants with traditions and ceremonies, rather than indulging in petty squabbles, they will accomplish this purpose.

It may be well for you to devote some space in your paper to a discourse of this subject.

MAX M. PLESSER.

Indianapolis.

(Editor's Note: If Mr. Plesser places the responsibility on the local rabbis, then let it stay there. There are at least four or five ways in which kosher meals could be made available downtown.)
